CO-OPERATION.

SACRAMENTO, THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 5, 1887.

Senator Stanford on the Co-operation of Labor.

LABOR IS ITS OWN IMPLOYER.

INCINCO AND VICINITY It Produces Capital-No Natural Conflict Between the Two-Labor Creates Wages.

EFFECT OF ASSOCIATED LABOR ON CHARACTER.

All Undertakings Open to Capital, Alike Available by Intelligently-Directed Labor-Interesting Argument-Convincing Deductions.

Senator Stanford explained the objects to be himself in the Senate of the United States, with reference to the formation of co-operative associations, substantially as follows. The subneads are those of the RECORD-UNION:

ent to me for many years. From my earliest equaintance with the science of political econmy, it has been evident to my mind that capial was the product of labor, and that therefore n its best analysis there could be no natural | beyond the point at which is is profitable. there could be no antagonism between cause and effect, between effort and the result of effort; and, since capital is the product of labor, product. Keeping this fundamental principle nism between capital and labor is the result of leceptive appearance. I have always been fully persuaded that, through co-operation, land is not cultivated, or in buildings which are invested in them had never been mined; but all employers; that the employer class is less indisin activity wholy out of the result of the labor it employs. WEALTH THE PRODUCT OF LABOR. 'Thus again we find the wealth of the world ator of capital, and capital is in the nature of a stored up force. It is like the balance wheel of which will perpetuate the motion of the machinery a ter the propelling power has ceased. A man takes a few thousand dollars of capital, uilds a workshop, buys raw material advanageously, and engages a hundred workmen to inufacture boots and shoes. This is the founation of enterprise. The employer of labor is not originate employments for themselves. They originate and direct their own employment. If, however, invite them; and the association of laboring there were no profit whatever to the employe men into co-operative relation, which in a large measure can take the place of the employer class, then practical co-operation would be realclass, must therefore of necessity be empbling.

EMPLOYMENT. "There is a mischievous belief among labor ing people that enterprises with large backing of capital offer a better guaranty of employ ment. This is not true. The only guaranty employment is its profitableness. Capital cannot afford continued employment to labor at a loss. Unless the product of the labor yields a conflict between the capital invested in his ansufficient return out of which wages may be paid, and the enterprise and skill of the employer properly rewarded, and the use of the If he takes in a partner, and the two join the carital also rewarded, the enterprise will of necessity be abandoned. I say the demand r labor is unlimited, because the capacity of he human mind to conceive new wants is un limited. With every advancement in givilizaon there is a corresponding enlargement of NO OVER-PRODUCTION FEARED WHILE MEN' WANTS INCREASE.

"Every year introduces something inte the wants of man which requires activity n a new field of labor to supply. The earth, the source from which all wants are applied, is an inexhaustible mine. We have, then, the unlimited advancement and extenion and multiplicity of human wants, and we have an unlimited source from which those yants may be supplied. The condition of labor rises with the advancement of civilization, because with the multiplicity of wants the demand for labor increases, and wants advance in proportion as they may be supplied. The human mind ceases to demand things that are impossiole of gratification. But, with the possibility o supplying wants, they come into existence, nd with them new fields of activity for huma labor are opened. It is for this reason that to labor. In fact, the difference between the ivilized and uncivilized man is a difference of he extent to which the hand of man has been applemented by tools and implements. The ndian on the plains of Nevada, with his anided hand, presents no evidence of civilized apacity or productive power. With him the imitive problem of sustaining existence ha ot been solved. His hand is not sup plemented by tools and implements, and is unaided hand finds constant employment in obtaining the mere necessities of physical existence. It is therefore impossible for him to en er any higher realm. LACHINERY THE POINT OF DEPARTURE FRO BARBARISM.

"The use of tools and implements which ventually expand and broaden and multi ing machinery, is the point of departure be ween barbarism and civilization. As soon a acivilized man perceives the value of an an with which to cut down the trees of the forests power, and thus his hand is aided. He can arded by the employer merely in the light of physical existence. Some of the intellectual wants of his nature may now be supplied, and with the intellectual activity necessary to the manufacture of an ax or a saw or a spade, he has acquired more intellectual force and power, extent and quality of his services. But when and this is inseparable from the acquirement nen are about to enter partnership in the way diversified wants. The uncivilized man, like the In When his physical wants are gratified he falls into a condition of sloth and indolence, if ineed he has time for indolence, for in a barbarous condition, with the hands unaided by implements, it requires constant effort, dil gence and industry to obtain the means of supporting mere physical existence. It therefore llows that every discovery in economic science which makes the production of things seful to man cheaper, and every new wan that is felt by man in his progress toward highe civilization, enlarges the field of labor. WHAT CO-OPERATION WILL DO.

"Co-operation will add new energy to civilized life, because it will increase the prosperity of of more ambitious and interested activity and laboring men, and enlarge in every respect the higher character. To this the Senator replies substantially as fol-

CIVILIZED METHODS CONSTANTLY INCREASE THE CAPACITY OF THE EARTH To produce things necessary to man. Improved methods of cultivation may render a single acre capable of producing an amount of human food equal to that produced by twenty acres in the past. The Malthusian theory of population, with which every student or political economy is familiar, predicted a limitation upon the numbers of the race by assuming a ratio of ination increased in a geometrical ratio, while he food product increased only in an arithmetcal ratio, and that therefore the capacity of the earth to produce food would not keep pace with the increase of population. The theory of poplation advanced by Malthus failed, because he did not make allowance for the great progress which has been made in inventions, nor for the mproved methods of cultivation which civilation has introduced. The real truth is that

CAPACITY OF THE PEOPLE OF THE EARTH TO PRODUCE FOO Is much greater in proportion to their numbers than during the time of Malthus. Take an example which is very near at home. The agriceed one hunared thousand people. There are not in excess of 29,000 adults engaged in agriultural pursuits in California, and yet these 20,000 men produce an annual export surplus equal to from one million to twelve and thirteen nundred thousand tons per annum. One million tons of wheat per annum will furnish breadstuff for ten millions of people. Here then in California twenty thousand people, by the assistance of labor-aiding machinery, are produc ing in a single year bread sufficient to feed ten aillions of people a whole year. Right under our own observation, then, 20,000 men produce in a single year bread enough to feed five hundred times their own number. In a state of barbarism, or even in the more primitive stages of civilization, this result would have been imossible. In fact, in a state of barbarism, the ndividual with his bare hands and possibly a ew rude implements of agriculture and hunting suipments, is barely able to support himself and minister to his own physical wants. Conlitions in a state of barbarism may appear to be more nearly equalized to a superficial observation, because all are on the dead level of abject poverty, below the line of which there is suborgence or actual starvation. I have already aid that

THE WANTS OF MEN ARE LIMITED ONLY BY THEIR INTELLECTUAL CAPACITY TO PERCEIVE THEM. let me add to that a most obvious fact : with he capacity to perceive wants, the power to neity correspondingly low. In a high civilizaon wants are multiplied, and become more complex, and the capacity of man to supply hem is augmented even in a much greater ratio han the capacity to perceive them. In stages ery few, and the habits of life very simple, the use of labor-aiding machinery is also very limited; but with the expansion of the mind under civilizing influence, the inventive genius ises, and while new wants have birth in the mind, still greater capacities for producing the things required to gratify these wants are also WHAT POVERTY SUGGESTS

"When you meet with a man who is poorly clad, poorly fed, living in a state of poverty, you are always beset with the painful reflection nat the unused portions of the earth would offer a broad field for the application of that man's productive capacity which would yield him and his family an abundance. When you see a man without employment, and reflect that but a small area of the earth from which all the wants of man are supplied, is under cultivation, and therefore but a very small proportion of the earth yielding its abundance to supply the wants of men, the contemplation is necessarily saddening. The fault is with the organization of our industrial systems. The individual so ircumstanced belong to the class of people who wait the action of an employer, instead of the employer class originates employments only for the gratification of its own wants. The hirer of labor uses other men in the employed relation only to the extent that his own wants

In the first place coperation would so improve the condition of ne working men engaged in it that their own wants would be multiplied, and a greater demand for labor would ensue; and in the second place, too much importance cannot be attached o the fact that no man can do anything unless This is just as indispensable in an employer of labor as it is in any other department of human activity. The number of employers of men will necessarily be limited to the number who ave the capacity to accomplish profitable re-

SENATOR STANFORD ON CO-OPERA-TION AND ITS BENEFITS.

The RECORD-UNION prints this morning an interview with Senator Leland Stanford upon co-operation, to which the careful and studious attention of every reader is invited. It will be found to be at once a series of politico-economic propositions, and a series of demonstrations of the truth regarding the relations of capital and labor. If this plain and forcible exposition of the benefits and possibilities of co-operation could be soberly read and considered by every wage-winner, it would carry conviction and result in the beginning of a beneficent revolution in the labor system of the whole land.

The strong disposition to give in this place something of the history of co-operation and of experiments in profit-sharing, and to fortify Senator Stanford's clear statements by citations of actual experiments, and enlarge upon the lines of the thought of the interview, must be repressed

But it is proper to say at this time that there is no proposition advanced in the interview that is not fortified invincibly by the best thought and experience of the age, and by experiments in both this country and the old world. So far as cooperation in one phase is concerned—that known as profit-sharing-there is in this city in practical operation in a large industrial establishment, a system exemplifying and giving emphasis to the remark of Governor Stanford, that the personal interest of the worker in the product of his labor conserves economy, quickens industry and dignifies personal character.

The Nelson manufacturing concern, in St. Louis; The Wannemaker (Philadelphia) mercantile establishment; the Weinstock & Lubin mercantile house, in Sacramento; the Delaine industrial scheme, of Paris; the Paris and Orleans Railway Company; the Bon Marche (Parisian) dry goods house; the Delft (Holland) distillery; the famous establishment of M. Goodin, at Guise, France; the Hazards Woolen Mills, of Rhode Island; the Pillsburg Flouring Mills, of Minneapolis; the Page Belting Company, of New Hampshire; Allen & Co., and the Hoffman & Billings Manufacturing Company, of Wisconsin, are all-profit-sharing concerns. To just that extent they are co-operative, but limitedly so. For, as Governor Stanford of them. But if he employs journeymen clearly shows, labor is the creator of its own wages and of the profit of the organizer and employer of labor. When, therefore, that organizer, to stimulate labor to greater endeavor, shares with it a portion of the margin above wages, it co-operates with it in a degree. But if labor, which is the author of both wages and margin, intelligently unites, it can share with itself all the margin, and, as the Governor adds, there is no undertaking so great that intelligently-associated labor may not grapple with it by uniting the labor and credit of the workers, and thus commanding and producing the capital needed.

Co-operative distribution is becoming a broader and better understood question every day. As it becomes clearer to the intelligence of the workers of the country, all the supposed antagonism between capital and labor will disappear. As Governor Stanford points out, this antagonism really exists only in ignorance-and, let us add, in demagogy. Capital is at once the benefactor and the dependent of labor. In his speech upon his co-operative bill in the Seneate, February 16th, Senator

In a large sense civilization itself rests and alvances on the great principles of co-opera-tion. The industries, the thoughts, the great ideas which produce vast and beneficial results, find their full development in association. *

The organization of individuals for a common purpose gives the strength, the capacity of the ablest to all the association.

The interview published this morning will be found to be an elaboration of these fundamental truths. While restraining the inclination to add argument to argument upon this attractive theme, and dwell upon some of the points made, it may serve a useful purpose in inviting to closer reading of the interview, if the central thoughts are rapidly recited, which are presented with such simplicity and masterly ability, and testify so strongly to the conviction of the truth that has fastened upon the Senator's mind.

Senator Stanford starts out with the enunciation of the fundamental truth that tion, which is, as Learned so well put it, the evolution of the sentiment of justice joyment of which the owners are abstaining in order to gain a future profit. But for intimidation." the definition relates more to capital in reserve than to its genesis. The definition accords with Perry's formulation, that capcause labor, there can be no real an-pendent upon the product of the labor it employs. The value of things depends upon their susceptibility of becoming valuable by has few other interests besides those connected with mining. There are perhaps the addition of labor. When the stored up one hundred mines, most of them conforce employs labor, it becomes its bene-their last cent into the machinery and imf ctor. But it employs it to make profit of it, for profit represents the margin of debt; they have their families to provide Now, says the Senator, let labor associate the efforts made to produce wages and force (capital) as it may have, and it can and I think if any arrests are made up command business for itself.

That is, the employer, for his organizing skill and labor originating ability, receives from labor a premium that represents the profit has makes above the cost of organization.

By the way they rallied to Quincy from all quarters, singly or in couples or squads, filling the town with determined men, when they learned Bassett was there, I think he understood they meant business, and, not caring to be a parter, very sensibly came away. I don't he makes above the cost of organization. a martyr, very sensibly came away. accessible to labor voluntarily associated and intelligently directing its own efforts. When this truth is firmly impressed labor reaches the level of its full meaning, there will come about a change in industrial conditions, contemplated now by but few thinkers, and before which all the A Frightful Colliery Disaster contention and heat born of ignorance of the substructural principles of civilization, and aggravated by the littleness of demagogues, will vanish.

Proceeding, the Senator shows that, as employment promotes industry and fosters enterprise, it is beneficent, and, therefore labor in the co-operative relation must be ennobling. The only and true guaranty of employment is its profitableness, for capital does not employ labor at a loss. Co-operative union, therefore, prosecuting industry, will have the same chances of success if intelligently directed, for the product of labor alone insures its employ-

If, then, labor produces that which returned to it as wages, as well as the margin of profit retained by the employer organizer, it owes a debt of gratitude t capital for the skill employed in its behalf, and which skill is a separate department of human activity. With the educational advance of the age, the general intelligence of the day and the freedom of labor, why shall it not become its own employer and its own benefactor?

Whoever, exclaims Senator Stanford employs himself renders a service to capi ital, and whoever is his own employer, by reason of industrial capacity, is in possesion of capital. The step from this truth to the question of thorough industrial edneation and manual training, in which Senator Stanford is now engaged as the chief of the effort of his useful life, is short and natural, but we cannot pause to take it now.

Upon the question of the distribution of labor product, Senator Stanford holds that as wealth is the product of agreement be tween capital, employer and labor and employed, its distribution, when justice is done, must follow the law of its creation. It is not needed that the further conclusion of this syllogism should be given-it is self-evident. When distribution is attempted by one demanding of another to divide with him the products of his labor, it is an assault upon manhood and the right to produce more than enough for self-sustenance All legislative attempts to distribute wealth have failed, because they destroy wealth and the productive industries. Now, says he, labor has no need to wait for others to employ it; by co-operation it can hire itself. Labor demands that the premium to the employer be small, and thus discourages the employer class. But if there were no profit beyond wages to the employer class, co-operation would be practically realized. The man who hires himself feels no conflict between his capital and and pays wages, there is a line between them that may become a disputed one. The Senator points out clearly how cooperation, by giving personal interest in enterprise, lifts up character as responsibility increases, which is the incentive to industry. So, too, co-operation will increase wages, because the best workmen will go to the co-operative associations. Employers will therefore be driven to offer higher inducements for the best workers. Next, the influence of co-operation apon the tastes is considered, and its effect n increasing the wants of men and fur nishing the means for gratifying them As the demand for labor is unlimited, be cause the capacity of the human mind to conceive new wants is also unlimited, he loes not fear over-production from the as sociated effort of labor. Some final words of the thinker are given to the refining effects of such association, its stimulus to industry, its general advancement of the working classes, and its multiclibation of wants, and of the ability to respond to

A division of the interview follows, deroted to the consideration of the question of the causes of poverty and the disparity of condition between rich and poor, but we reserve comment upon this portion of the interview, these remarks having already exceeded contemplated bounds.

The paper that this interview thus makes up, is one that will command widespread attention, and while it may be expected that it will develop some adverse criticism, we venture the prophecy that its strength will be the more developed by

YESTERDAY'S RACES. Fine Day, Good Attendance, and Fast

The attendance at the spring races of the Capital Turf Club, at Agricultural Park vesterday was twice that of the preceding day. The day was pleasant and the track fast. The first event was a half-mile dash for two-year-olds, between bay colt by Hooker, Pocatello, Mother Hubbard and Geraldine. The last two were sold as Ashe's stable in the pocls for $25, Pocatello $10, bay colt $3. The bookmakers offered $20 to $1 on Mother Hubbard, Geraldine $35 to $100, Pocatello $11 to $5, bay colt $12 to $1. The colts when they came upon the track were the admiration of every one, and none showed to better advantage than those who were regarded as worthless by the bookmakers. Geraldine, before the race was called, became so large a favorite in the pools that it was impossible to get respectable odds against her. The judges were Ed. S. Culver, J. W. Wilson and Christopher Green.

The horses were started for the race on the horses were started for the face of the second attempt, with Geraldine slightly in the lead, a position she maintained to the finish, crossing the score in 48½, the fastest time, ages and weights considered, made on the coast; Pocatello second, bay colt third, Mother Hubbard fourth. Many horsemen who held their watches on the second streets to 701 N horsemen who held their watches on the race in the grand stand made the time .48. The jockey who rode the winner was Mike

For the seven-eighths-mile dash there were three starters—Stanley, Laura Gar-dner and Sir Thad, started in the order and sand from the mining claims of defendants. The Hill Top mine is referred to especially, but attention is also paid to parties engaged in mining higher up the river. In accordance with the prayer of the complaint, Judge Van Fleet has issued a writ of injunction, which will be immediately served.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The annual Grangers' picnic takes place at Beach's Grove to-day. The steamer San Joaquin, No. 4, arrived from San Francisco yesterday with lumber and merchandise.

There are messages at the Western Union telegraph office for Miss Katte Keehner and Miss Laura Van Worth. A special train arrived from Lathrop yes terday about 4:30 P. M. with delayed mails and passengers from the south.

The annual number of the Sacramento Business College Journal has just been issued, and is a highly creditable publication. Stephen Bauman was thrown from a vagon on the Grant, Tuesday, and suffered a fracture of the left arm near the wrist, and bruises about the head.

Chief Dillman has received a letter from the Superintendent of Police of Chicago, asking for the address of Patrick Coleman, supposed to be residing in Sacramento

Deputy Sheriff Cogswell brought to the county jail from Galt yesterday a man named Thomas L. Smith, who is to be examined by the Commissioners of Lunacy Attention is called to advertisement of

Dr. Berson, giving notice of the removal of his educational institute from Fifth and O streets to 701 N street, and other matters connected therewith. Good work is being done in the improve ment of I street, between Fifth and Sixth, by filling up the boles and low places with gravel. There are so many of them that the whole surface of the street is being improved. The average Signal Service temperature yesterday was 60.6°, which was .6° cooler than the average temperature for that day during nine years. The highest and lowest temperature was 77° and 46°, with fresh southerly winds and clear weather. The St. Louis Baseball Club has organized with the following members: H. Devine, Captain; C. Strobel, Secretary; F. Smith, President; F. Murphy, F. Dawson, J. Walker, C. Eilers; J. Dunworth, property man; J. Hanarahan, Treasurer.

The covers are all made, and the entire order can be filled in a very few days. Tuesday evening a man named J. Hal-perstadt, of No. 432 Tyler street, San Francisco, who was stealing a ride on freight train No. 6, fell between the cars at Colfax and both of his legs and one arm were run over. He lived about two hours after the Mayor Gregory last evening called Chief Dillman's attention to the fact that gam-bling games were being conducted openly at Agricultural Park, and suggested that The next race was a mile dash between they be stopped. The Chief responded that he intended to stop them, and they have therefore doubtless had their last day.

> Mrs. T. E. Ragland was injured at Tenth and M streets, Tuesday, in consequence of a runaway team colliding with her vehicle, causing her to be thrown with great vio-lence to the pavement. She was insensi-ble when picked up, but recovered after being taken home, and was found to be only severely bruised and badly shaken up. The Schofield & Tevis building, at the northeast corner of the alley on Second street, between I and J—a large two-story brick structure—has shown such a decided tendency to lean northward that men were engaged yesterday shoring up the north wall to prevent its falling upon the house adjoining. The building was constructed carefully, but through some process of setling the north wall has sprung out and

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever-A New Treatment. From the Scientific American. Catarrh, on account of its prevalence in this country, is attracting a good deal of attention, more especially now when there is a probability of a visit from diphtheria for where there is a muco-purulent discharge, such discharge forms a nidus very inviting to diphtheria germs and very favor able for their reproduction in a more vio lent form, thus placing sufferers from Catarrh at a great disadvantage in the event

Catarrh is a contagious disease. It is muco-purulent discharge, caused by the presence of a vegetable parasite in the lining membrane of the nose. These paraites reproduce themselves in great multi tudes, and each generation is more viru-lent. They spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, caus-ing ulceration of the throat; up the eustachian tubes, causing deafness; burrowing in the vocal cords, causing hoarseness; usurping the proper functions of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

The reason that Catarrh has become so prevalent a disease is entirely due to the fact that it has not been understood. Physicians have been unanimous in treating it as a simple inflammation of the membrane, prescribing daily and even tri-daily applications THEREBY KEEPING THE MEMBRANE IN A CON STANT STATE OF IRRITATION, which simply aggravates the disease and really injur the patient, and consequently have signall failed to produce cures, because a treatmer calculated to effect a cure of this diseas should not be applied oftener than once in two weeks, thus giving the ulcerated men brane time to heal before making another application. Microscopic research has re vealed the presence of the parasite, and now sufferers from this disease who appre of next week. Clinton L. White, of this peared in it to better advantage, nor did ciate the fact that it is, by way of its sec ondary effects, a most deadly one, will b glad to learn that a wonderfully successfu treatment has been formulated, whereby the most aggravated cases of Catarrh have three simple applications. The interesting pamphlet descriptive of this new treatment from which we glean the above, is sen free to all applicants on receipt of stamp by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King stree west, Toronto, Canada. Mr. Dixon, Sr., is now on a short visit to this coast, and can be seen at the Golder Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, every Thursday. fferers should write or call and see him Consultation free. HOUSEHOLD REMEDIES

"SARSFIELD" REMEDIES CO. SARSFIELD'S REMEDY for the Blood and Constipation!
SARSFIELD'S REMEDY for Diphtheria and Pneumonia!
SARSFIELD'S CHRONIC ULCER SALVE!

The people of the Interior will remember that a few years ago, J. P. SARSFIELD, of Sacramento, became fortunately possessed of certain valuable remedial agents. With these he effected in Sacramento and Central California remarkable cures, and drew the approving attention of many physicians. So widespread became the fame of his remedies, that business men were convinced of the province of the province of the truth of the marvels they accomplished. The their entire reliability, and of the truth of the marvels they accomplished. The result has been the formation of a Company to aid him in putting these needs for suffering humanity broadly upon sale. The Company has its Depot at No. 115 EDDY STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, but the medicines can be had of all reputable

CONSUMPTION

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

Among the number were one or two specialists The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly milicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer wa healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years-I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After aking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stoute than I had been for several years. My cance has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise every one with cancer to give S. S. S. a fair trial. MRS. NANCY J. MCCONAUGHEY, Ashe Grove. Tippecanoe Co., Ind.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa. Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood, and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
